Dear Delegates,

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the 6th Annual Privacy & Data Protection Conference: "Data Protection – global compliance management". We are privileged to host this event at our offices in the City of London.

Global data protection compliance is an essential requirement for all multinational companies particularly those involved in cross-border data transfers and for governments, authorities and businesses. This stems the almost instantaneous nature of data sharing resulting from new technology, software as a service and cloud computing. Not only the EU but other countries around the world increasingly implement legislation to regulate the roles and responsibilities of businesses as well as the rights of individuals in relation to their personal information. The increase in information security breaches by both governments and businesses and subsequent investigations and crisis management issues increase the focus on information management practices.

We have brought together experts from the regulators, the lawmakers and the legal community from the US, the EU, the Middle East and Asia in order to debate the full range of issues that make up data protection compliance.

The conference will enable delegates to hear from experts as well as debate in open forum a range of issues from multi-jurisdictional compliance to niche areas such as outsourcing, monitoring, cloud computing, children's privacy data security breach management.

I look forward to seeing you at Speechly Bircham's offices on Thursday 9th July 2009.

If you're looking for style, you're in the right place. Mal London is a stunning hotel, a lavish example of modern chic.

We have 97 rooms, including one suite, all of which are perfect for business trips or luxury weekend breaks.

Our décor is understated but elegant, with lilac, dove and earth fabric tones creating a calm, yet fresh milieu.

All our rooms have the complete set of Mal ingredients - great beds for sleepy heads, moody lighting, power showers, CD players, CD libraries, satellite TV, serious wines and naughty nibbles. Other little luxuries include fast and free internet access, same-day laundry, toiletries that you're encouraged to take with you and 'vroom' room service for breakfast, dinner or those midnight munchies!

Delegates attending The 6th Annual Privacy & Data Protection Conference can take advantage of a special discounted room rate.

Marketing Improvement

Data Protection, Privacy and Marketing

Increasingly European and global legislation affects how you can obtain and use data in your sales and marketing programmes. Businesses and consumers alike are more concerned than ever about data privacy. We will help you avoid prosecution, negative press and to turn legislative compliance into marketing advantage. We develop solutions that are underpinned by a focus on both individuals' preferences and data privacy legislation. While CRM may be dead we believe that Permission Based Marketing is not only alive and well, but increasingly the only way to profitably engage with customers and prospects.

We have legal experts and marketing practitioners on our staff and join the dots between the two. We find the balance between the legal absolutes and the practical needs of the business to carry on doing business. We maximise marketing reward while minimising their legal risk. Our services include touchpoint optimisation - to make sure that the maximum amount of data is being collected and collected legally, we undertake Data Privacy audits focused on sales and marketing staff (who are often the greatest risk!) and we develop permissioning strategies that garner more data and more consents.
